Shockoe Hill Cemetery

The City of Richmond opened this cemetery in 1822 after the grounds at St. John's Church neared capacity. The cemetery is still city-owned. Burials are available only to family members in existing family plots.

Among the notables interred here...(see map on reverse)

1. John Marshall (1755–1835): Though a Revolutionary soldier, Congressman and Secretary of State, it was as third Chief Justice (1801–35) that Marshall most influenced his nation's future. In Marbury v. Madison and other decisions, he ensured the judicial branch was co-equal to the executive & legislative branches.
2. Elizabeth Van Lew (1818–1900): Abolitionist and Union spy; organized informants network, and assisted Union prisoners. President Grant made her City Postmistress, noting she gave "the most valuable intelligence from Richmond during the War."
3. Peter Francisco (1760–1831): Known as the "Sampson of the American Revolution;" celebrated by Washington and others for feats of strength and bravery.
4. John Wickham (1763–1839): Prominent lawyer; defended Aaron Burr in his 1807 treason trial, presided over by John Marshall. Granddaughter Charlotte, who married R. E. Lee's son Rooney, is here with her two children; all three died during the War.
5. Jane Stanard: The family friend and object of desire referred to by E.A. Poe in his poem, "To Helen." As a teenager, he spent many nights here pining at her grave.
6. Many unmarked Confederate and other graves are in this deceptively open area; not sold by plot, but used for single burials. Hundreds of Union POWs long believed here were actually buried to the east, across 4th St. (and later moved.) A marker placed by the Military Order of the Loyal Legion honors them.
7. John D. Blair (1758–1823): Prominent Presbyterian minister and city leader.
8. William Foushee (1749–1824): The first mayor of the City of Richmond (1782).
9. James Gibbon (1758–1835): As a Pennsylvania infantry officer he helped win at Stony Point (N.Y.) in 1779. Later the Customs Collector for the Port of Richmond.
10. William H. Cabell (1772–1853): Governor of Virginia (1805–08); assisted with the founding of the University of Virginia.
11. John Mercer Patton (1797–1858): Congressman (1830–38); Provisional Governor (1841); revised Va's. Code (1850). A great-grandfather of Gen. George S. Patton.
12. Charles Bell Gibson (1816–1865): Surgeon-General of Virginia (1861). From 1861 to 1864, he ran C.S.A General Hospital. #1, in the large brick building just to the north. Performed Virginia's first surgery under general anesthesia (1848).
13. Johnson Jones Hooper (1815–1862): Noted mid-19th century humorist, admired by Twain and Harte; served as Sec. of the Provisional C.S.A. Congress (1861–1862).
14. John Allan (1780–1834): He was an often-contentious foster father to Poe.
15. Sarah Elmira Royster Shelton (1810–1888): Beloved of Poe as a teenager, and again in the weeks before his death.
16. John Minor Botts (1802–1869): Congressman (1839–43, '47-'49), leading Southern Unionist & foe of the C.S.A. gov't. Orphaned in the 1811 Theater Fire.
17. Powhatan Ellis (1790–1863): U.S. Senator (Miss.), federal judge, Envoy to Mexico.
18. Daniel Norton (1794–1847): Richmond agronomist; developed the disease-resistant Norton grape, now a standard wine grape throughout the U.S.
